Could Bethel Station path be in by this fall?

It took more than five years, and the snowmobile bridge is still far off, but the path could finally become a reality

By MICHAEL DANIELS

There are still uncertainties and loose-ends to be tied up (see sidebar), but it appears possible that work will finally begin this fall on the multi-use path through Bethel Station.

If so, it will still have been a long time in coming. Such a path -- designed for pedestrians, cyclists and snowmobilers -- was proposed more than five years ago. The idea first emerged as one of the amenities touted by Bethel Station developers when they began pitching the project to town voters in 1993.

At that time, in fact, more than a simple path was being dangled in front of voters. The developers

Gotta match?

By MICHAEL DANIELS

There are a number of details that must be worked out before the multi-use path through Bethel Station can go out to bid.

Most are relatively minor concerns, such as permissions for crossing rights of way and easements, removing the remaining sawdust piles at the site and submitting a preliminary design plan to MDOT.

But still unresolved is one major potential stumbling block -- nailing down the town's 20 percent match toward the cost of the project.

The match (approximately $98,000) was initially expected to be accounted for by the value of the land Bethel Station was giving to the town for the path.

But coming up with $98,000 worth of valuation has proven more difficult than expected.

Bethel's Best busts Berliner burgling Brown's Mobil

ROBERT RIOPEL

By ALISON ALOISIO

It seemed like just another routine call for a malfunctioning burglary alarm.

But when Bethel police officer Stan Moore arrived at Brown's Mobil Station around midnight Saturday, it quickly became the real thing.

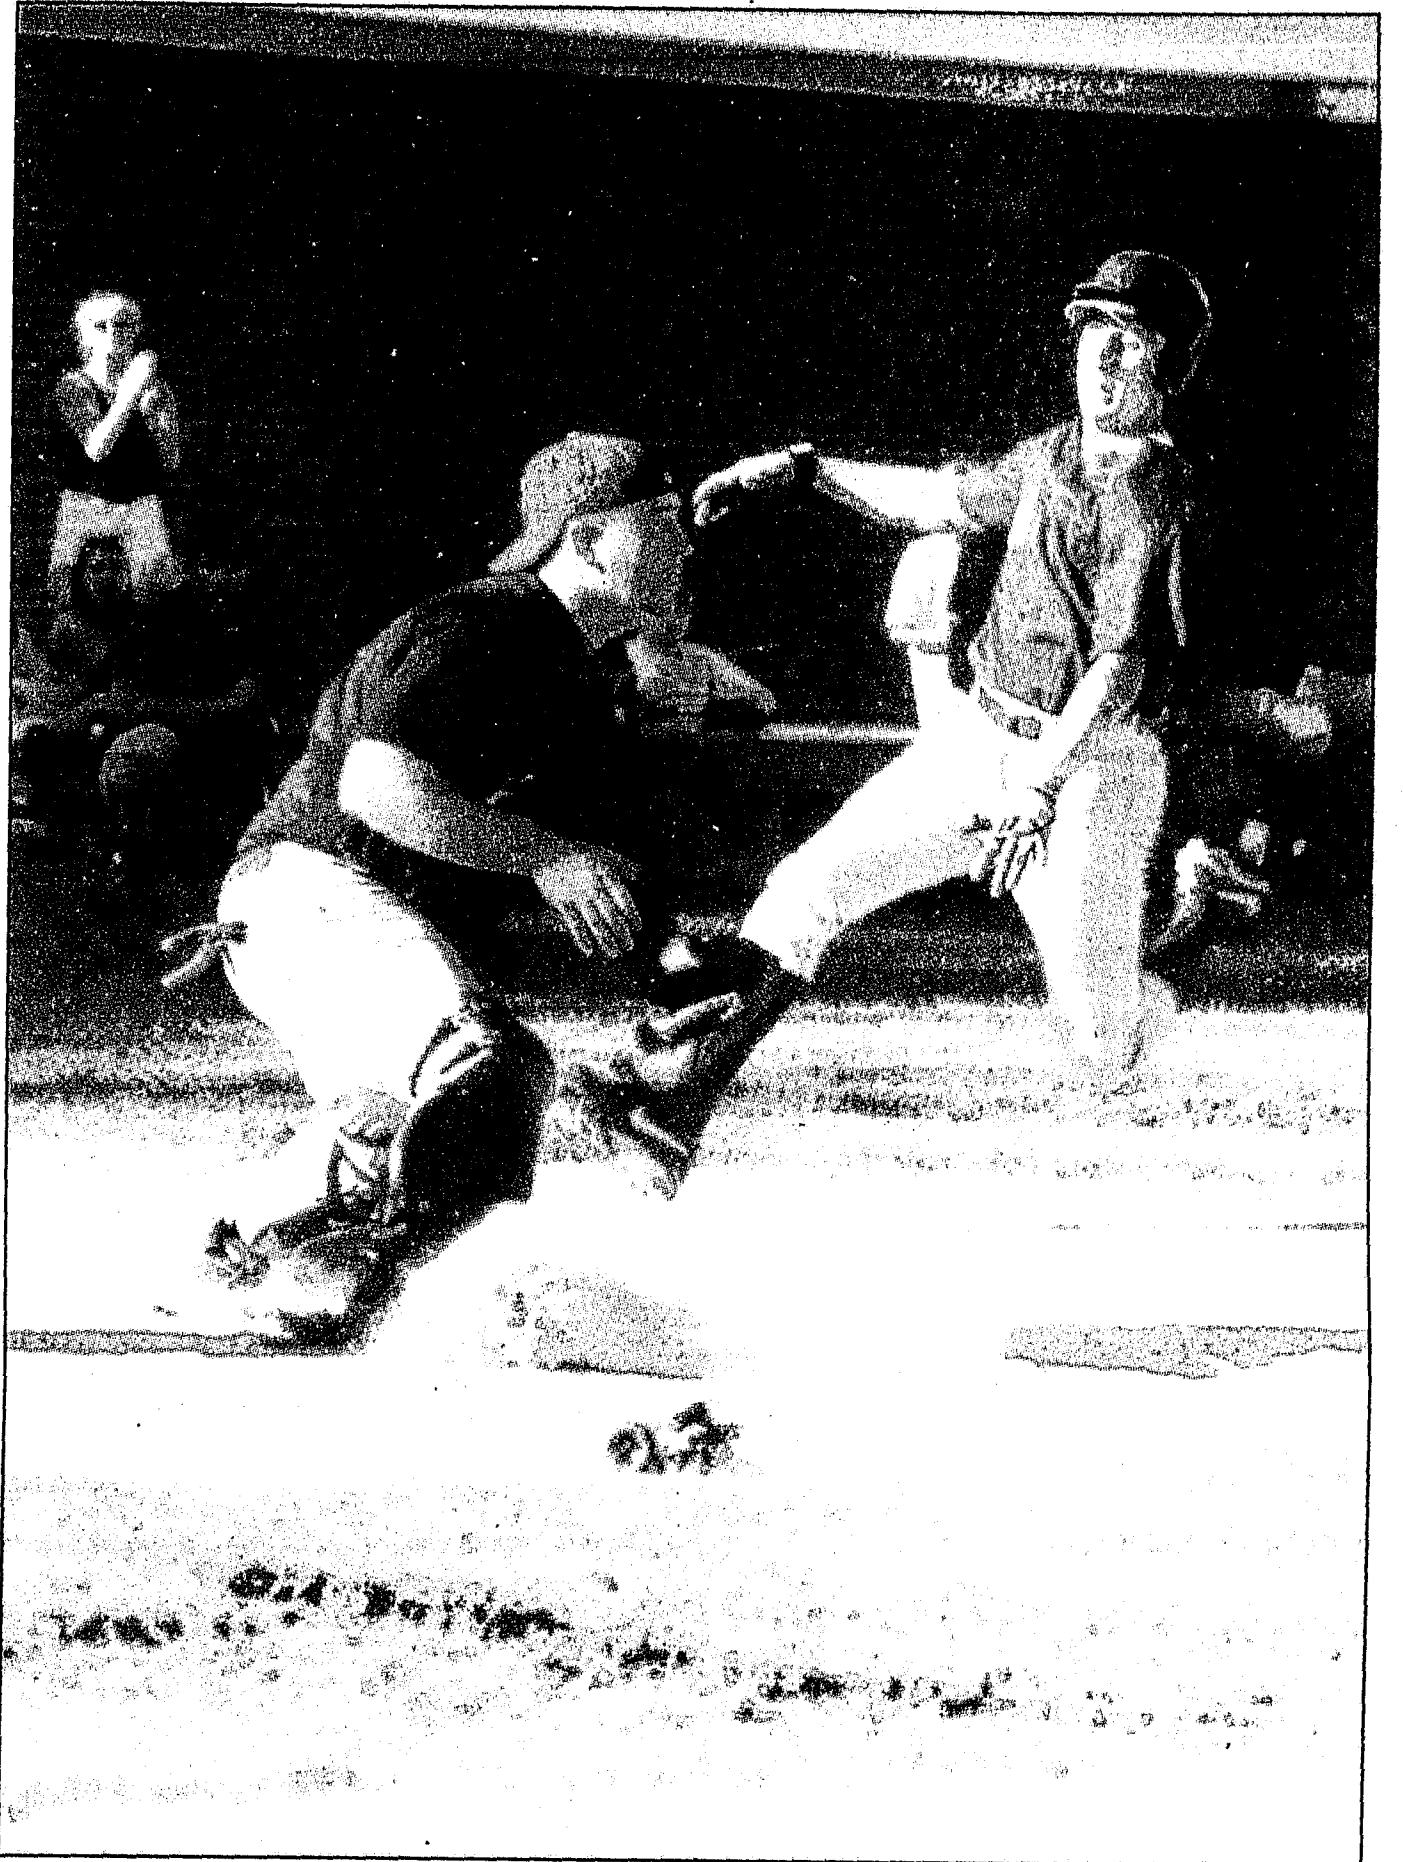

Moore saw a man inside the building, and quickly called for backup. Then he attempted to secure the building -- which has multiple exits -- on his own. But when the other officers arrived and searched the store, they found the man had fled.

A short time later, the officers received a report that a vehicle belonging to a former Brown's em-

The Bethel Pine Tree League baseball team qualified for the league championship series by beating Gray-New Gloucester 7-6 Sunday. Here, Bethel's Tim Remington starts a slide to home plate as the GNG catcher awaits the throw. Remington was safe -- and had himself an inside-the-park home run on a long ball to the outfield. Bethel faces Lewiston tonight (Thursday) at Gould Academy at 5:30 in the first game of the best-of-five series. (This team was only one of several area teams that had great seasons. By ALISON ALOISIO 1999 was a very good year for Bethel area baseball players of all ages. Two recreational teams brought home league championships, while several others went deep into the playoffs.

And it hasn't ended yet, as the Bethel Pine Tree League team begins a best-of-five series this week for the league championship.

The team, made up of adults, takes a record of 16-3 against Lewiston today (Thursday) at Pettengill Park in Auburn. They earned the spot with a 7-6 semi-final series win Sunday over Gray-New Gloucester.

Bethel player-coach Gary Williamson also earned the league's Most Valuable Player Award for the fourth year in a row.

Among the younger crowd, the Greenwood-Woodstock Bambino team (11-12-year-olds) won the Andy Valley League Championship. And in June, the Bethel Babe Ruth team (14-15-year-olds) won the Tri-County League championship.

All-Star teams that included Bethel-area players also did well, although they fell just short of taking it all. The Bambino All-Stars (ages 11-12) finished second in the state, losing a close 3-2 game to champion Winthrop. The Babe Ruth All-Stars finished third in the state.

At the American Legion level (15-18-year-olds), the Bethel team turned what had been a mediocre season into a hot playoff run. They won three Zone III playoff games before losing to Andy Valley.

Racers rally weekend's business

By ALISON ALOISIO

At 7 a.m. last Friday morning, the parking lots of several lodging places in Bethel resembled pit row at a motor speedway.

Sports cars bearing numbers were everywhere -- and so were their drivers, crews and fans.

They were in the area for the Maine Forest Rally, which took place in Rumford over the weekend. Bethel lodging places were the beneficiaries, as an overflow of visitors sought places to stay.

This was the rally's fourth year, and the number of participants and spectators has grown each year, according to Rosie Bradley of the River Valley Chamber of Commerce. This year, there were 70 cars.

Dale Cheney of the Norseman Inn can confirm the growing numbers of people. Of her 31 rooms, 25 were occupied by rally people. "It's getting bigger and bigger," she said. "Last year we just had a handful."

Participants and spectators registering at the Norseman came from such places as Arkansas, Michigan, New York and Connecticut. Some had made reservations a month earlier, while others showed up at the last minute.

Cheney said she was glad to see them. "They were very nice," she said.

A little farther up Route 2, at the Rostay Inn, Kathy Thrall also reported a full house. Of her 19 rooms, 16 were rally people. "If I had a hundred rooms, I could have filled them," she said.

And her guests -- from Poland (the country), Canada, Wisconsin and Michigan, among other places -- stayed three days this year, compared to two last year. "They're a great bunch of people," she said. "There's a lot of camaraderie."

Chad McGrew at the River View Resort, also on Route 2, reported about 70 percent of his rooms filled by rallyers. "We've been booked (for the weekend) for three months," he said.

What is the rally?

By ALISON ALOISIO

The Maine Forest Rally, sponsored by the Sports Car Club of America, is part of a growing national sport.

The two-day Rumford event saw race cars from around the U.S. and Canada compete at high speeds on logging roads owned by Mead Paper, International Paper and the Seven Islands Land Co.

The teams must drive as fast

Young drivers here are putting in longer hours

By ALISON ALOISIO

Marjorie Osgood of Newry was nervous when Atlantic Driving School instructor Gary Webb asked her a question in driver education class.

What, asked Webb, does a driver following another car at night see?

Osgood gave him the obvious answer -- taillights.

Correct. But then Webb went on to make his point. If a driver pulls over to the side of the road and stops -- but does not put on emergency flashers -- he may get hit from behind. The reason: the driver following may assume the car is still moving and simply follow the taillights.

It's a good point, said Osgood.

What was Osgood -- an experienced driver and mother of two teenagers -- doing in driver ed class?

She and other local parents of teenagers are putting in class time with their teens as part of Maine's tougher driver education laws.

About a year ago, Maine implemented a tougher road test for drivers seeking a license. In addition, the state also upped the requirements for driver training courses. Getting a license is now more time-consuming -- and expensive -- for teens and their parents.

But, says Webb, he hasn't heard many complaints.

"Ninety percent of the parents have responded positively," he said.

Webb's school provides the instruction for most Bethel-area students. He's currently teaching a summer class at Telstar High School to two dozen prospective new drivers.

Student drivers must now put in at least 10 hours of driving practice time with an instructor, compared to six hours under the old law. Parents must also participate in the course -- by either sitting in on an hour of class time or riding in the instruction car for a half hour.

Then, when the teen gets a permit, the young driver must log a minimum of 35 hours of driving time with an adult before applying

BINGO HALL UPDATE

To the Editor:

The next battle in the fight to keep the Passamaquoddy Tribe's proposed 55,000 square foot high-stakes gambling facility out of Albany Township is scheduled for 10 a.m. on Sept. 10.

That is when oral argument is scheduled before the Maine Supreme Court in Portland.

In June, the tribe and LURC filed their briefs asking the Maine Supreme Court to reverse the Superior Court's decision that overturned LURC's approval of the bingo-hall development proposed to be located beside the Crooked River on the Old West Bethel Road in Albany Township.

In reversing LURC, the Superior Court reasoned that the tribe's 18-acre parcel in Albany did not meet the requirement of Maine's Indian Territory statute, and since high-stakes gambling is only allowed on Indian Territory, the tribe's proposed development was illegal. The tribe and LURC both argue that the land is Indian Territory even though the tribe failed to meet the law's date deadlines to qualify for Indian Territory status.

Putting it simply, we argued in response that the Indian Territory Law and LURC's rezoning requirements mean what they say and should be interpreted accordingly -- even when the landowner-developer is an Indian tribe.

For more information about the appeal, contact the Albany Improvement Association, Dotty Duddy at 527-2138, or Norma and David Salway at 824-2305.

INCREDIBLY GENEROUS OFFER

To the Editor:

As a Bethel Beach Committee member who felt frustrated and disappointed with the outcome of the Songo Pond property, I would like to thank the Angevines for their incredibly generous offer to the town. This property holds tremendous potential for a beautiful recreation/swim area at a lower cost to the town. Several committee members as well as other citizens have already given their time to help make this a reality. It is our hope that the townspeople will continue to support and join in this effort. What a wonderful gift we have been offered.

BUILDING 'ANGEVINE PARK'

To the Editor:

I want to express my thanks to Alberta and Ernest Angevine for their generous gift of land to build a swimming hole. I hope their kindness and community spirit will inspire us all to work together as we build "Angevine Park."

The Bethel Beach Committee is hard at work on making the Angevines' vision a reality. We truly hope this will be a community project, with the citizens of Bethel sharing their ideas, skills, and financial support. Working together, we can build a "swimming hole" that reflects the beauty of the land and the spirit of the people of Bethel. That would be quite an accomplishment.

A WATERSHED EVENT

To the Editor:

Congratulations to coordinator Sue Lincoln and everyone else involved for a job well done in organizing the recent "Source to the Sea" Androscoggin River Canoe Trek. This fourth annual canoe trek covered the whole 170 miles of the Androscoggin in daily segments from July 10 to 28, and included both an on-river and an on-shore special event each day.

One of the latter was a "watershed" event in more ways than one: a kickoff celebration for the newly formed Androscoggin River Watershed Council, which brings together parties with interests at stake in the river and watershed both in Maine and New Hampshire.

The canoe trek, with its considerable newspaper and TV publicity, along with the numbers of people participating, did a great job of increasing public awareness of the renaissance of the river, and their interest in helping this continue.

WOODBURY CANADA DAYS FOR KIDS

To the Editor:

Woodbury Canada Days will be held Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 14 and 15.

On Saturday, the children's parade will start at 1 p.m. with old-time games immediately following.

All children's events will be held on the lawn of the Dr. Moses Mason House. The theme of this year's parade is "Cartoon Characters of Today and Yesteryear." Children are encouraged to use cardboard in creating their costumes, whether using it to draw on or to shape a cartoon character.

The games to be played will include a potato sack race, clothespin race, wheelbarrow race, three-legged race, and many more.

An ice-cream-eating contest for everyone will be held following the games.

Younger children will have an opportunity to try our homemade bubble-making recipe using items right out of the kitchen.

We hope everyone will come on out and have tons of fun in an old-time way.

Marilyn Swan
Coordinator of Children's Events

PRESERVING THE PAST—Two organizations in Woodstock volunteer their time to care for and improve town cemeteries. The Village Improvement Society cleared and cleaned up the Dudley Cemetery (above), located on the Dudley Road. The Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War, Judith Grover Tent #17 of Bryant Pond, also place flags in the cemeteries. DUV members shown here are (from left): Elizabeth Hoover, Helvi Cary, Michelle Cary, Elena Noyes, Elsie Bonney and Kathy Sherf. Another cemetery was recently cleaned on the same road (see below).

POST OFFICE AND HANNAFORD, TOO -- THANKS

To the Editor:

I would like to express my thanks to the Gliddens for their dedication to the town of Bethel. The renovated Post Office on Main Street is a true asset to the town. Now they've gone a step further by bringing high-quality Hannaford products to their grocery store at lower prices. Seniors formerly had the "Tuesday Special," but now lower prices are available every day to people of all ages.

I thank them very much for the caring contributions they have made to our town.

as possible on sections of the route designated for racing. Other sections are set aside for resting or repairing vehicles.

Timers are stationed at checkpoints of the racing sections to time the competitors.

The cars are all street licensed and registered. They are usually compact sport sedans, with the fastest turbo-charged for extra power and having all-wheel drive for traction.

A locally-organized rally also took place on Sunday. The 1999 River Valley Chamber of Commerce Fun & Wonder

Time/Speed/Distance Rally was sponsored by Atlantic Driving Schools.

In the TSD competition, the key to winning is staying on schedule at check points along the course. The competition takes place on local roads at normal speeds.

Newry mil rate up

NEWRY--Selectmen Tuesday set the 1999 tax rate at 10.3 mills, up .5 from 1998. Tax bills were expected to be mailed by the end of the week. The increase reflects a $122,955 increase in the municipal budget appropriation and a $50,931 increase in the SAD44 school budget share. The town also saw a minimal increase in the tax base -- $73,266. That, said selectman Bill Wight, is a significant difference from previous years, when valuation increases were in the millions of dollars. The mil rate will allow for a $70,000 overlay to cover such things as abatements and nonpayment of taxes. Administrative assistant Sylvia Gray noted, however, that the town has a good record of tax payment. In 1998, for instance, only 19 liens were placed on property out of more than 2,000 tax bills. Gray also said the town has more than $200,000 left over in funds from previous overlays and interest earned. She also said the town's mil rate is one of the lowest in Maine. Tax bills paid within 30 days of the date they are issued may receive a 2 percent discount. Interest of 10 percent will accrue on bills unpaid after Oct. 1.

Woodstock rate up slightly

WOODSTOCK--Woodstock's mil rate has been set at 13.65 -- up .05 from last year. The town's total budget for 1999 is $1,279,698. The mil rate will allow for an overlay of $2,689. Selectmen approved the mil figure at their Tuesday meeting.

Bid for sidewalk work awarded

WOODSTOCK--Selectmen Tuesday awarded the bid to pave Bryant Pond's sidewalks to Lars T. Ltd. of Norway. The company bid $16,000 to put two inches of pavement over the village's deteriorating sidewalks. Townspeople approved $20,000 for the project at the March Town Meeting. The selectmen also accepted a bid of $5,500 from S.A. McLean Inc. of Limerick to purchase Woodstock's 1982 sander truck. The town replaced the truck with a 1990 dump truck last year.

Scenic byway may grow longer

NEWRY--The Route 26 Scenic Byways Committee last week reached tentative consensus that all of the 20-mile portion of the road from Newry Corner to the New Hampshire state line should be designated as scenic, according to committee member Bill Wight. Currently, 14 miles of the road in the area of Grafton Notch are so designated. Also under consideration by the committee are possible improvements to scenic turnouts along the road. Grant money for the project has been made available from the state. A public hearing on the committee's recommendations will likely take place in September.

Watercraft vote mixed in Bridgton

BRIDGTON--Bridgton voters were divided on several watercraft-use issues decided by referendum last week. A proposed ban on personal watercraft on Highland Lake was defeated, 607-320. A proposed restriction on the use of the craft before 9 a.m. on Long Lake passed -- but was rendered meaningless by a previous vote in Harrison against the restriction. The two towns share Long Lake. The Bridgton voters gave their support to a proposed marine patrol with a seasonal warden unit, to be funded at least 80 percent by private money. They also okayed protecting smaller ponds with horsepower restrictions, identifying rented personal watercraft with ID stickers and limiting boat speed on Moose Pond. Another article sought to limit boat traffic on all lakes to headway speed before 9 a.m. It was defeated. The vote results will be sent to the Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife, which will present recommendations on the issues to the state Legislature.

Portland pay-per-bag working

PORTLAND--Portland's new pay-per-bag trash program has significantly increased recycling in the month since it went into effect. Recycling has jumped from 7 percent (30 tons) to 32 percent (80 tons). The city had set 35 percent as a goal. The overall amount of trash has also dropped from 380 tons per week to about 280 tons. Officials said residents may now be holding back large items such as furniture until September, when the city will pick up heavy items.

Licensing settlement on dams

RANGELEY LAKES--A settlement has been reached on licensing conditions for the operation of Upper and Middle dams in the Rangeley Lakes region, FPL Energy, Inc., announced last week. The agreement concludes nearly two years of negotiations with a collaborative team of state and federal resource agencies, non-governmental organizations, municipalities, area camp owners, a local land trust and members of the public. Upper and Middle dams impound Mooselookmeguntic Lake and the Richardson Lakes at the headwaters of the Androscoggin River. Specific terms and conditions of the agreement will be presented in the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission license application and the Draft Environmental Assessment now under way. The license application is scheduled to be filed with FERC in December.

USFS considers lifting logging ban

MONTPELIER, Vt.--The U.S. Forest Service is considering whether to allow five small logging contracts that were awarded before a logging moratorium was declared in the Green Mountain National Forest in November. But an environmental group that forced the government to adopt the ban in order to protect the endangered Indiana bat wants the logging jobs postponed until this fall, when bats start to leave the forests for caves to hibernate. Forest Watch had filed a complaint last November, raising questions about the bat's presence in the GMNT and the agency's attention to protecting its habitat. At that time, one bat had been located in a well-known bat cave in the forest. Since then, four more have been found. Forest Watch said it will sue if the logging isn't postponed until hibernation starts. The bats like to roost in trees with rough, thick bark.

Airboat needed for Saco?

FRYEBURG--A growing number of trouble calls to police from isolated sandbars along the Saco River have spurred interest in an airboat that would help law enforcers keep the peace. With thousands of canoeists flocking to the shallow river in search of a wilderness experience, the area has been getting a bit too wild. A camper with a cellular phone who was spending the night on a sandbar recently called Fryeburg police to report an incident that began when a man and woman started fighting. When the woman ran to another group of campers for protection, the boyfriend threatened the group with a chainsaw. When the river is low, police are unable to respond quickly. The water is too shallow for boats with outboard motors and too deep for cruisers or ATVs. Although no one was hurt in the recent incident, it was three-and-a-half hours until police arrived to deal with the man with the chainsaw. By then, he was gone. Selectmen hope to find a grant or private donations to help buy a used airboat for about $10,000.

Nursing home info on Net

AUGUSTA--Licensing inspection reports on Maine nursing homes are now readily available to those with Internet access, according to the Maine Department of Human Services. The site for the department's Bureau of Elder and Adult Services now includes a link to the federal agency that stores nursing home survey information. The address is www.state.me.us/dhs/beas. Information on specific facilities may also be obtained by calling 1-800-262-2232.

From the Bethel Police Log:

Driving under the influence of children

At 7 p.m. on July 28 a caller reported that a large car had just "spun up" his yard on Route 2. The officer stopped the vehicle on the Mayville Road, and escorted the driver back to the complainant's property. The driver apologized and offered to rake out the spun up lawn. The complainant agreed. When the officer asked the reason for the driver's actions, the driver said he had "a car load of kids fighting and he lost his cool and piled on the brakes as he pulled to the shoulder to discipline them."

Saturday, July 31

At 9:55 a.m. police received a call requesting they check a rental residence to see if a party had moved in prior to getting permission from the owner. The property was found to be vacant.

At 6:52 p.m. police received a report of a domestic disturbance on the Songo Pond Road. On arrival police spoke with the complainant, who said she had been threatened. The subject she said had threatened her was then located on the road, and after a brief struggle was arrested. Lawrence Ward was taken to the Oxford County Jail and held in lieu of bail.

Monday, Aug. 2

At 12:55 a.m. police stopped a vehicle on Route 2 for a loud exhaust. It was found the operator did not possess a valid operator's license. Joseph W. Corson, 38, was cited for operating without a license.

This report highlights points of interest from the Bethel Police Department log, but does not include all reports of police activity. To reach the Bethel Police Department, call 911 in emergency situations, 824-3437 in non-emergencies. An answering machine takes calls when an officer is not in the office.

ployee had been seen in the area.

Moore stopped the vehicle on Railroad Street. The driver, Wendy Wentworth of Berlin, N.H., told him that the man in the building was her boyfriend, Robert Riopel, according to Tripp. She said she had dropped him off in Bethel Village because he had been having an argument with his wife, Tripp said.

The officers then began looking for Riopel. At 2:20 a.m., the police received a call from a passing motorist that a man was walking west on Route 2 in West Bethel.

Moore and Tripp stopped him just east of the Pleasant River Motel.

Moore identified the man as the same one he had seen in Brown's.

Riopel, 38, of Berlin was arrested and later confessed to the burglary. He was booked on charges of burglary and theft, and held on $2,000 bail.

Charges are also pending on Wentworth, 24, as an accessory to burglary and theft.

Inside Brown's, police found a plastic garbage bag containing $130 in coins, $80 in bills, $365 in bank deposits and several cartons of cigarettes.

Riopel had forced his way in through a rear window, Tripp said. Riopel also apparently had the combination to the store's safe.

A grand old place for kids

By MIKE BROWN

Why is it that every time somebody, some politician or some company wants to get attention they go to the kids?

The latest such so-called study seemed to suggest that Maine is the best state in the nation to raise kids. Gov. Angus King Jr. and members of the state's congressional delegation who attended the Washington press conference ate it up.

Now comes another competing kids-for-show outfit saying the much touted best-in-the-nation kids' study was faulty. The battle of the dueling kids' studies.

There are some interested non-biased, non-proprietary facts surrounding the issue. For instance, Maine is rated in 1999 as the 15th most livable state in the country by a highly respected national state ranking company. Minnesota (shades of Jesse The Mouth!) was rated number one and not even in the top five for best kids.

The same rating company pegged Maine in 1999 as the seventh healthiest state. Minnesota again captured the number one spot in this category.

Perhaps the real reason that Maine rates so high with kids is that we take pretty good care of them. Sure it's the law, but Maine last year was rated first in the nation (99.6 percent) as the percentage of adults whose children use a car safety seat. Minnesota (healthiest in the nation) was 28th. Texas was dead last: only 85 percent of kids were safely strapped.

Mothers beginning prenatal care in the first trimester were almost 90 percent, the fourth highest in the country. Maine mothers care.

And when Maine parents get their kids to school age the state, despite grumbling about formulas and other distributions of educational money, takes pretty good care of their kids.

Maine has 227 school districts, with 691 public elementary and secondary schools. That's close to 210,000 kids distributed, about 152,000 in elementary and the rest in secondary. The national pupil-teacher ratio is 17 pupils per teacher. Maine averages 14 pupils per teacher. And there are about 14,000 teachers in Maine with an average annual salary in 1998 of $34,349.

In 1998, the expenditures per pupil in elementary and secondary public schools was about $7,000, or the ninth highest such expenditure in the country. That percentage will go higher next year because the state Legislature has increased its appropriation for state aid to education.

Maine has about 3,500 kids enrolled in the Head Start Program. The state's federal allocation for that program in 1998 was $17,232,824.

All school and no play makes Jack and Jill boring kids. And if physical exertion is not preferred then Maine has 275 public libraries where kids can escape into other worlds and places. In fact, Maine ranks number one in the nation in books in public libraries per capita.

And so all in all perhaps Maine does deserve its honor of the best place to raise kids in the country. The problem is, however, parents have to move away to get jobs and consequently raise their kids in other states.

But their kids have kids, which are grandchildren who come to visit gramp and gram who have moved back to Maine to retire.

Full circle.

Path

were describing the path as part of a riverside park, running nearly the length of the project.

In February 1994 town voters approved the land-for-building swap that developers had said was key to having the project move forward.

But shortly after that the advertised amenities began to fall away. Developers dropped plans for a footbridge connecting the project to Elm Street, saying it would not meet the requirements of the Americans with Disabilities Act.

And plans for the railroad station, which was to have been the hub of the project, were drastically scaled back after town voters refused to take possession of the building.

Then the riverside park went away, with developers citing DEP setback requirements along the river, and the need to protect wetlands in the area. The path could still be built, they said, but they wouldn't be paying for it.

Bridge prospect rises, falls

In November 1994 it appeared the "public-private partnership" approach of the developers had begun to bear fruit. The town learned it had been awarded a $491,000 federal "enhancement grant."

Those enhancements were to be in the form of infrastructure improvements that would make it easier and more pleasant for non-automotive traffic to pass between the project and the village.

The improvements included sidewalks and lighting, landscaping, the pathway, and a snowmobile bridge over the river.

Such a bridge has been long sought by local snowmobilers.

The current bridge, they argue, is extremely dangerous for snowmobilers, who are forced out into the traffic lanes when they attempt to cross it.

Work on the improvement began in 1995 with the sidewalks, which are now largely complete.

But almost from the start, the bridge ran into problems, largely because its cost had been seriously underestimated in the grant application.

In the application -- which had been prepared by Bethel Station consultants -- the bridge was projected to cost just under $100,000.

When the bids began to come in, however, it became clear the bridge was going to cost several times that amount.

Over the ensuing years many alternatives were proposed for reducing the cost of the bridge, including cantilevering a snowmobile lane off the current bridge, running such a lane under the current structure, and building a free-standing suspension bridge.

None of these, however, proved feasible from both an engineering and financial standpoint.

And as the end of 1999 began to loom, bridge and pathway supporters were forced with a hard choice -- the five-year window for spending the federal funds was drawing to a close, and the Maine Department of Transportation (which administers the federal funds) essentially told the town: "spend the remaining money on the pathway, or you will lose it."

That option did not sit well with some local snowmobilers, but left with no feasible alternative, town selectmen reluctantly went along with the suggestion.

If the remaining issues regarding the pathway can be resolved, the basic path could be completed by as early as this fall, according to town Project Specialist Don Murphy.

Related improvements such as parking areas, spurs and rest areas -- perhaps even a handicapped-accessible viewing deck atop the river bank -- could be built in the spring.

And once the pathway is in place, supporters have argued, the town will be in a far stronger position to apply in later federal-funding cycles for money to build the bridge.

The town's position could be further strengthened if it goes ahead and develops a parcel of land on the North Road offered by Ernest and Alberta Angevine as a possible site for a swim/recreation area.

That site would be readily accessible for older children traveling on bicycles from the village, but there would be one potentially dangerous point for the young cyclists -- the present road bridge over the Androscoggin River.

Part of the problem is that Bethel Station's initial valuation for the land proved wildly inflated.

When the figure was presented to the MDOT real estate specialist, "it was thrown right out the window," said town Project Specialist Don Murphy. "It was chewed to pieces," Murphy told the Bethel selectmen recently.

With the valuation MDOT is currently using, the land under the path is worth approximately $55,000 -- leaving the town more than $40,000 short of the value it must contribute to the project.

That difference must be made up before the work can begin, Murphy said.

There are a number of options for doing this, but all would require some decisions by the town.

The value of volunteer labor could be counted, Murphy said, and the value of work by town crews and equipment (assuming the selectmen would agree to deploy town resources on the project).

Or the value of the land could be sufficiently increased if not just the actual land under the path was considered, but rather the value of the entire 17-acre riverside parcel that Bethel Station recently offered to donate to the town.

But before that could happen, the town would have to agree to accept the parcel, and it is by no means certain the town would.

The selectmen's initial response to the donation was cool -- largely because of concerns about possible problems with the retention pond included as part of the 17 acres.

Voters would also have to agree, and on at least one occasion -- in 1994, when Bethel Station offered to give the train station to the town -- voters have said: "No thank you."

And even if the selectmen and voters agreed to accept the donation, the process itself could take so long that work would not be able to begin until next year.

There is also the matter of getting the deeds for the land, which the town needs to have in hand before work can begin.

The town asked in March for the deeds to the land under the path, Murphy told the selectmen recently, but has yet to receive them. That situation did not please the selectmen.

"It's been my understanding all along that those deeds would simply be delivered -- that the agreement was well in place and we could have those deeds whenever we needed them," said board Chairman Dutch Dresser.

"I would like to de-couple those two issues (the deeds and the land donation). It seems to me we have a standing agreement for deeds to the land under the pathway. I'd like us to make a formal request for those deeds," Dresser said, adding that such a request "would not be linked to acceptance or denial of the proposal that was put before us."

If the match problem does delay the project further, Murphy said, he does not believe the federal funding would be jeopardized.

"There is no 'drop-dead' date," he said, "but they want us to be doing something."

Thank You!!!

Driver Ed

to take the license test. Five of those hours must be driven at night. Webb is all in favor of the tougher requirements. If parents choose to ride in his training car, he said, they get a preview of how their teen is doing on the road. "If they're not good drivers, the parents get to see it before they get out on the road with them," he said.

While all the students may put in the driving time and pass the written test, he said, some just don't pick up the skills as quickly as others. "Some (students) you can't teach in six or 10 hours," said Webb. The parents need to be ready for that, he said.

If the parents choose to do class time instead, they get drilled with situational questions just like the kids do. And they watch a movie of a teen driver and parent on the road -- having an argument over driving issues and directions.

It's important for the parent to be clear in instructing the teen to watch out for hazards, said Webb. "Look out for that," just won't do, he said.

Webb is particularly happy with the requirement that teens and parents keep a log of driving hours. Sometimes, he said, teens only spend five or six hours behind the wheel during the three months they must wait to take a road test.

Since the passage of a new law last summer, parents of teenagers taking driver education must go to class with their teens -- or ride in the back of the instruction car for a half-hour. Here, parent Linda Gibbs looks on with her son, Jeremy, at the wheel. The instructor is Mick Mikkelsen. (Aloisio photo)

The road test

The permittees will need the extra practice to pass the tougher test. A year ago, the brief test required parallel parking, a hill stop, some turns and a trip through a traffic light.

The days of the 10-minute test are over," said Webb. And it shows. Last year, about 75 to 80 percent of candidates passed the test on the first try. Since the new test, only 55 to 60 percent pass it the first time, he said.

The new test takes about a half hour -- and involves a lot of general observation of the driver, said Webb.

The examiner will, for instance, note whether the driver takes his foot off the gas if a car appears at the end of a driveway.

Osgood, who has had children take driver education under both the old and new requirements, supports the tougher requirements.

"Kids need a lot of experience driving with their parents," she said, and the log requirement should encourage busy parents to put in the road time with their teens.

Osgood said the older road test her daughter took several years ago seemed easier than the one Osgood took herself. When Osgood parallel parked, it was on Main Street in Norway. When her daughter did it, it was on a side street.

Additionally, she said, in years past some teens had the opportunity to get general steering experience by driving farm tractors. That seems to happen less often now -- another reason more instruction and practice is advisable, she said.

Mike Broderick of Bethel also has two teens who came under different state requirements. He, too, favors the stricter law. In only six hours of road instruction, he said, "it's difficult to get a good understanding of what happens on the road."

And logging the permittee's driving time "provides a good tool for reviewing competencies," he said.

The log provides a suggested test list of skills, including changing lanes, driving in bright sun, turning around by backing into a driveway, and driving in all weather conditions.

Broderick also said he found that with his older son, it was necessary to go out of the Bethel area to find driving conditions that provide a wide range of experience.

With Bethel's relatively sparse traffic, he said, the conditions here "are pretty forgiving. We spent a lot of time driving in Paris for practice."

Driving in school curriculum?

Osgood said she sees only one drawback in the new requirements. That is the increased price of the classes, which may cause difficulty for some families.

The extra driving hours add about $100 to the course cost.

Osgood said she would like to see instruction offered again as part of the high school curriculum, as it was when she learned to drive.

"It's part of education," she said. (Broderick had one tongue-in-cheek criticism of the log checklist. It does not include the skill of avoiding in-line skaters, he said. An in-line skater himself, Broderick was recently involved in getting Bethel ordinances changed to allow skaters to skate in parts of Bethel Village.)

Bethel

Keith Bartlett underwent knee surgery recently. Pat Greig was honored at a cookout held at the home of her daughter and son-in-law, Roberta and David Hunt, Bethel, in celebration of her retirement from the Social Security office in Rumford, after 18 years of service. Many people enjoyed the cookout and visiting. A money tree was presented to her.

The Methodist Women served breakfast to 110 bikers Tuesday morning. The Bike Club came in from Fryeburg and tented overnight on the Telstar athletic fields on Monday and were on their way to Rangeley the next day.

The Methodist Church is being scraped and readied for painting. Laura Hickey, daughter of Musa Brown, celebrated her 50th birthday with a party at their summer place in Shelburne, N.H. Many family and friends attended.

Kim Vincent from Texas is visiting this month at the home of her grandparents, Jerry and Shireen Vincent.

Richard "Sonny" Blake underwent appendectomy surgery last week.

Muriel Butters spent two weeks recently in Magnolia, Del., visiting Kathleen Butters and family. Tony is in Oklahoma going to school to fly a new plane. Kathleen and children returned to Bethel to spend a few weeks with Muriel. This week, Kathleen is in Oklahoma with Tony.

Orlando Fraser of Vidalia, Ga., is visiting this week with his mother, Doris Fraser.

Tom Davis will make his first visit to the Davis' Songo camp for his vacation later this summer.

Ernest Angevine is at home after spending some time at Stephens Memorial Hospital in Norway.

Jess and Kim Cochran of Houston, Texas, spent a week at the Jodrey camp at Songo Pond with their grandparents, Stan and Eleanor Lord, and aunt and uncle, Eleanor and Arlan Jodrey.

Scott Lane is completing 28 days of training in Texas.

Barbara Herrick Brown is spending some time with her daughter Susan and her husband at the Brown cottage at Songo Pond.

Barbara and Rudy Honkala recently attended Fin Fest in Seattle, Wash., and spent two weeks with their oldest son, Willie.

Al and Lee Barth's daughter, Marcy and children, Elena and Tess, from Chicago are visiting at the Barth home on Grover Hill.

Rudy and Barbara Honkala and Bill and Ginny Hastings attended the wedding of Suzanne Tamminen, a cousin, at the Chebeague Inn on Chebeague Island.

The Bethel House

Paul Bartlett visited his mother, Helena Bartlett, at the Bethel House recently.

Bethel Alliance Church tied with Maine Line Products for second place with their float in the Mollycodd Day parade. A coin was tossed to determine the second-place winner and Maine Line Products won. So Bethel Alliance was awarded the trophy for third place.

Elaine Dresser stopped by recently and we played one game of cribbage. I won. Now it is four for Elaine and three for me.

Irene Russell spent the night recently with her daughter, Judy Gagnon, at her camp on Crystal Lake in Gray.

Rebecca Ricker spent her birthday, which was July 30, with Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cole in Pinhook. She had a birthday party.

Dottie Bean is back at the Bethel House after being away because of a knee operation.

The Bethel Alliance Church saves canceled stamps and Campbell's soup labels for the missionaries. The stamps must have one-quarter inch all around the stamp in order to be used. To do this, open letters on bottom of the envelope and then you can cut out the stamps and have one-quarter inch all around them. These stamps and labels help the missionaries a lot. If you would like to save some for Bethel Alliance they would be appreciated. If you do not come to church so as to bring them, just leave them with me or anyone that attends the Bethel Alliance Church.

Pastor Rick's message for July 25 was "The Power and The Glory." There was a nice attendance. Judy Webster on piano, Peggy Mowery the flute and Pastor Rick with his guitar furnished the music for the hymns and choruses. Pastor Rick also sang a solo accompanied by Judy Webster on the piano.

Many are having summer colds and coughs; well, I was no exception. I gave in and went to the doctor. She prescribed an antibiotic and it was only six pills. I had to take two the first day and then one each day thereafter for four days. Well, I am doing lots better but my pocketbook is thinner. It cost $44.08 for the six pills.

Vada spent the day with me on Tuesday. We stayed out a lot. We still had time for 14 games of cribbage. Now in 307 games, she is only one ahead. I gained two on her. We ate at the Frozen Logger at noon. She took me out so I could see the Head house after the Sunday fire. Vada's son lives near her on the Taggart Road in Rumford. His house was struck by lightning. It did not start a fire, but it ruined two TVs and his furnace. Vada's TV was also ruined.

I was very disappointed that more did not get in about Mollycodd Day.

On this past Saturday, we had a yard sale here at our house again and did very well on it. There is still stuff left and we will put more out this next Saturday. You might just find something you would like. There are extra coffeepots, warmers, cookie cans, little wooden boxes, etc., but no more cast iron fry pans or crocks. Those are gone. Anyway, it was fun and we got rid of a lot of stuff.

On Wednesday night, the Hannah F. Richardson Tent 19 D.U.V. of the Civil War met with eight members present at the K. of P. Hall here in Stoneham. Tent president, Eleanor Nelson, opened the meeting at 7:30 p.m. Maine Department D.U.V. General Orders number three and number one were handed out by the secretary. Secretary and treasurer's reports were read and accepted. Balloting was done on a new application. A certificate of appreciation was received from the Tugus Hospital Gift Shop for items received from us. Instead of Tom Watts, the Daughters will be doing Holiday Company for one of their fundraisers this year. There are plans to fill registration bags, folders and baskets on Sunday, Aug. 8, at the K. of P. Hall at 1 p.m. in Stoneham. Lesley reported that on her travels with national president, Gail Butterfield, they visited with Eileen Coons, who is a member of D.U.V. in Warwick, R.I. This was a pleasant surprise to her.

The National D.U.V. Convention will be held Aug. 12 through Aug. 16 at the Double Tree Hotel in Portland. All who can are urged to attend. Lesley Dean is our new Maine Department president and has many projects planned already. Anyone interested in joining the D.U.V. please call Lesley at 928-2611 or myself at 928-3096. We are an active patriotic organization. The next meeting will be on Wednesday, Aug. 25, at 7 p.m. at Loretta Andrews, Thelma Dammun and myself attended the senior citizen dinner at noon. I had never done that before and it was quite an experience. One thing that I really enjoyed was the Richard Felt Band that played there. I could listen to them all day. That's my kind of music. The dance hall was packed full where it all took place. Afterward, they were giving horse-drawn wagon rides. I didn't do that. We saw several people that we hadn't seen for quite awhile to chat with. It was a good day. That night was the skillet-throwing event and Kitty Nelson came in third place. She must have been practicing. I have never done that either.

Saturday, the Stoneham Church Thrift and Bake sales did okay. It's too bad that more people don't take advantage of these sales, as they have some really good stuff there and its very inexpensive. It does help on the church expenses and usually on the bake sale table there are pies, cookies and diabetic foods to choose from. This is every Saturday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

There is a sign on the bulletin board at the school that states, "Don't feed the Bears," and we try to comply. Boris is just hungry. The berries are very poor and the apples are small and green. Jim Yarnell planted a nice blueberry bush a while back. Joy noticed that they were "just right" for breakfast. Boris had another plan, he had a midnight snack and ate them all.

FAMILY PRACTICE CARE ...
...for you.

Since graduating from the University of New England College of Osteopathic Medicine in Biddeford, Maine, Christopher Short has undergone some intense training as a family practice physician. He's worked in urgent care walk-in clinics, interned at St. Elizabeth Hospital in Utica, New York and done his residency at Millcreek Community Hospital in Erie, Pennsylvania.

Dr. Short's extensive education was focused on learning how to treat all kinds of patients. Moms and dads ... kids and grandparents ... people like you and your family. You never know what may come up that requires a trip to your family doctor — a flu shot, a yearly check-up, an ear infection — but whatever does arise, you can count on Dr. Short and his colleagues at Oxford Hills Family Practice ... they've spent a lot of time getting ready for you.

and Phyllis Young did a lion's share of the work. Sylvia Wight reports that it was a wonderful day. Guests included visitors from Florida, Maine and New Hampshire. Norman Scruten was minister at the Upton Union Church years ago. His daughter, husband and grandchildren were camping in New Hampshire and enjoyed the day with old friends in the Barnett family. Four hundred dollars was raised at the family auction. Malcolm Barnett's son, Russell, will host next year's reunion in Errol.

The Scenic Route 26 Byway Committee met in Newry on Thursday, July 29. Progress was made. Vision statements were presented and safety, bike trails and environmental protection, were discussed.

The Planning Board met on Saturday, July 31. The selectmen were granted a permit for the construction of a Town Garage to house town vehicles.

The second annual Umbagog Wildlife Festival was held in Errol on Saturday, July 31. Paul Casey reports that it was well attended and enjoyed by visitors. A live Raptor and Predator presentation was given by Dr. Tim Parker. The Errol auditorium was filled in spite of the very hot weather. Dr. Parker held the audience's interest from beginning to end with specimens live and preserved. The children were rapt with attention and posed many good questions for him to answer. The star of the day was a little saw-whet owl. Let's make him "Bird of the Week." He earned it in that heat with all those gawking humans staring at him.

The new Errol Cook Book is on sale. It's a good one.

This article I wrote 40 years ago, but our fields are much the same today. In August there is a soft bloom of the ripening of summer coming over the landscape. The mists are hanging veillings of delicate blue. Some meadow grasses have turned amber by the sun and are softly furrowed by the wind. Higher up grow the blackberries and the steep bush. In places neglected and withered are the June grasses. Here and there are clumps of alders, and vines show effects of the long siege of summer sun and the dryness of several weeks.

The pastures and roadsides are dotted with flowers: fall asters; black-eyed Susans; common thistles, best-loved by the gold finch looping in the sunlight; Joe Pye-weed, king of the meadow and of course the goldenrod, its tasseled head lifted to the sun, a symbol of late summer and early fall. Then there is the meadow lily. What is more enchanting than a wood-bordered meadow or a roadside hung with these delicate nodding bells which look as though ready to tinkle at the least disturbance and sound an alarm among the flowers.

Venture along the brooks or ponds and occasionally you see one of our most lovely rare flowers, the cardinal. Its bright color, sophisticated irregularity of blossom, an attraction to humming birds, combine to give it an aura all its own. Because of our picking, it has become quite rare. Its brilliant gleam is reflected from the shadowy waters' edge with unequalled intensity. As if some wounded eagle's breast/slow throbbing o'er the plain/Had left its airy path im-

Crows flap heavily from tree to tree. The air has the high perfume of the mountains. In the gardens there is the musical droning of the bees.

Soon -- very soon, the deep forests and mountains will be alive with color. Autumn once more.

Mr. and Mrs. Artland Rogers came to see me one day recently. Artland was a pupil of mine years ago. It was so nice to see them.

Gail Butterfield from South Paris is the national president this year.

The town put a light at the honor roll so the flags could fly all the time. But, thanks to someone who stole the flag over the weekend, I guess it won't be needed.

Stan Andrews is at Ledgeview Memorial Home in West Paris while recovering from bypass surgery for his leg. Cards or visits would be welcome.

Barbara Hathaway and Kathleen Bean watched the Historical Society museum recently, much thanks. Larry Billings, curator, has given the society a book on classical music and one on how to draw and paint. The society offers the public many advantages. You, too, can benefit from its services.

Here is some historical information about the Rutherford B. Hayes family. Hayes became president in a disputed election. Tilden, his opponent, got a quarter of a million votes more than he did, but the electoral votes were in question. A commission was set up and with eight Republicans and seven Democrats on it, every vote went to Hayes. As a result, many people called him, though not to his face, "Your Fraudulency." His home in Fremont, Ohio, was called Spiegel Grove and was large and elegant. His wife was known as "Lemonade Lucy" because of her opposition to alcohol in the White House. Miss Hayes, his daughter, lived in Bryant Pond later in life. Known as "Fanny" as a child, she was famous for a very fine doll house she had in the White House. Though married and later divorced, she always kept the family name, "Hayes." She was active in the Garden Club in Bryant Pond and was particular in her domestic arrangements. As an old lady she was very deaf and used an ear trumpet. After her death, she was buried in the family crypt in Ohio.

Sarah Clements visited with her grandmother, Marta Clements, for the first time, away from home, for a few days. Sarah turned four years old on July 9. While she was visiting, they went to Maine Wildlife Park in Gray and Santa's Village. Sarah is the daughter of Bruce and Cynthia Clements of Weare, N.H.

Jamie Monzo is working at Dr. Eriksson's office in Norway for a while this summer.

Dennis Poland took his mother, Tommy Poland, to Saco on Sunday, for a visit with her sister. They went for the afternoon and had supper on the way home.

Dillon Poland fell last week on a gate on a truck at his home. Dillon had 44 stitches in his head and was taken by ambulance to Stephens Memorial Hospital. He is coming along fine. He is only six years old. I wish him a speedy recovery from the accident.

Stan Andrews is recuperating from bypass surgery on his leg at Ledgeview Nursing Home in West Paris. Stan would like visitors and his room is 209. Good luck, Stan.

Congratulations to Connie Rice and Aaron Bean on the birth of a baby boy, Jarrett Thomas, born at Stephens Memorial Hospital July 28 (I think). Jarrett weighed 7 pounds, 3 ounces.

Also, congratulations to Tanya Cole and Matthew Ryerson of Bryant Pond on the birth of a baby girl, Sierra Destyni, born at Stephens Memorial Hospital on July 22, weighing 6 pounds, 1 ounce.

Larry Billings, curator of the Woodstock Historical Society, reports that the museum offers a valuable perspective on the 20th Century, which is now ending. It has records covering most of the period and many books outlining its development. The collection of uniforms in the museum chronicles the conflicts during the century. Pictures of people and buildings prominent during this period line the walls.

Curator Billings recently sent his sympathy to the Kennedy family. Though he is a Republican, he does not believe in being partisan. He got a letter from John Baldacci a little while ago.

Mason Township

by Richard Grover

Just a few days ago, I noticed that the swimming hole at "The Falls," in Mason, was silted up with a tan-colored silt. This stuff stirs up and clouds the water terribly when anyone touches the bottom. I had never seen this troubling effect in our swimming hole before, and I set out to find the cause.

First, I drove upstream and found nothing polluting the river, or any of its tributaries. Then, last Sunday afternoon, I went back to the swimmin' hole to look around and take a swim. The crud was worse, and made the water opaque whenever two or three swimmers stirred it up. Finally, as I stood on a rock discussing the problem with another fellow, I discovered what was happening. There is a "sandbar" of clay on the north shore of the swimming hole. On closer examination, the clay seems to be oozing out of the bank under some rocks. The stuff clouds the water at the slightest disturbance.

Now, I presume the clay is harmless, but I wonder why it has started infiltrating the stream now, when it is so dry everywhere. I do know that the entire hill between the swimming hole and the Grover farm is made up of clay and rock and quite a lot of water. I remember when they bulldozed the road in the old days when I was a kid, they almost buried a bulldozer in the wet ooze of water and clay, which makes a really sticky mud. For several years after they built the road, the clay oozed down the hill and covered the valley floor to a depth of a couple feet, in places, making a lovely place for a boy to tread around barefoot to see how deep he could get.

The thing that concerns me now is that the clay may ooze out of that hill for years and silt up the stream whenever the water level is down. We need a good downpour to flush it out.

In another vein, I am happy to see that John and Fumi Head have kept their perspective and a sense of humor in spite of their recent misfortune. On Tuesday last week, I was one of a group of people moving furniture and other personal belongings out of the house and into the barn so that the insurance adjuster could assess the fire and water damage. John, Fumi and several other people were on the front lawn, sorting, packing and inventorying smaller items, as they had been doing for some time. John told me that as they were working, there during that afternoon, a car, pulled up at the side of the street, the driver rolled down the window, and queried, "Are you having a yard sale?" John answered, "No, you damned fool; get out of here."

had a few comfortably cool days in June and July, but too many of them were uncomfortably above 80, for my liking. I am not a warm weather aficionado; never have been. I like to swim and play on the water, so a few warm days are okay, but 85 and 90 were never my favorites. Even those wouldn't be so bad if it weren't for the ozone. I can see it from my bedroom window; I can feel it in my lungs. It steals up and circles my throat as if to strangle me.

Today is better. It is cooler and the breeze has sent some of the "bad" air away. I just hope it sends all the ozone to wherever ozone goes when it is not here. I do not understand it very well, myself, but I know there is good and bad ozone, and we worry about a hole in the ozone layer, yet we are not happy for the ozone we have. I even tried an ozonator, which I think tries to bring in the good ozone. Still, I just want to be able to breathe and to go about my business without gasping for air.

My Vista went in for a body job recently and now sports a newer look. She also passed inspection, thanks to the work of Joe Bailey. It seems that there were holes in the floorboard. That probably explains why I got tired and sleepy driving. I always check the exhaust system, but finding no holes thought I was okay. Now it turns out that the holes were in the floor and not the exhaust. In any case, now they are fixed and I have no exhaust traveling through the floor. That means that I can keep the air conditioning on and the windows closed.

This being August, I look forward to fairs, birthdays and perhaps visits from those far away. The Maine Festival in Brunswick, is a favorite of mine. There are so many things going on -- performers and artisans everywhere. They even have poets and poetry readings. That is this weekend. Of course, it competes with Olde Home Days in Andover, but still, it is worth the trip.

I had good news recently. My mother may be going home after 15 months in Florida, recuperating. I hope that happens. Perhaps she will even visit here. She likes to come up here, and I hate going down to her place -- too many people and too many cars.

It's off to start the day and hope I can keep going all day. The air quality is supposed to be good and I am counting on it. I need to do more weeding. This past week, while I had a window of clean enough air, I weeded and discovered that I do have zucchini. Boy do I have zucchini. Until then, I couldn't find any on the plants. Now I will look for cukes. Perhaps there are some of them, too, but I doubt it.

Have a good week and enjoy this wonderful cool weather reprieve.

Eleanor and Norm Davis would like to get together as many folks from the community as possible for a picnic at their home on Sunday, Aug. 15. The gathering will be from noon on. Hot dogs, hamburgers and some drinks will be provided. Please bring a salad and/or dessert and your beverage of choice. This will be the Davis' 40th wedding anniversary, so please stop in and say hello. Everyone welcome.

Bill and Sylvia Wight attended a luncheon at the home of Betty Peterson in Cape Elizabeth for the Class of 1935 at Gould Academy recently.

Bob and Naomi Scruton (Curmings), their daughter Brenda and family of four children arrived in Maine from the state of Washington, camping along the way. They stayed a week on Lake Umbagog in the New Hampshire State Park. During the week, they spent some time canoeing on the lake and hiking in Newry. Their granddaughter wanted to attend church that her grandfather served. They all came down to attend the family reunion of the Barnett Family, where they gathered at the Ladies Aid Building, which had recently been painted. The ladies had flowers on all the tables. Many thanks to all.

All members and friends are reminded that the next monthly meeting will be held on Thursday, Aug. 5 in the meeting room of the Dr. Moses Mason House, beginning at 7:30 p.m. This meeting will open the exhibit, "Sprague's Journal, Popularizing and Disseminating Maine History in the Early 20th Century."

Featured speaker for the evening will be Marius Peladeau, who was a scholar involved with the development of the exhibit and the author of "John Francis Sprague: Chronicler of Maine History," which will be available that evening. Autographed copies will be available for those desiring them. The appearance of Mr. Peladeau is made possible in part by a grant from the Maine Humanities Council, which also supported the exhibit.

Much appreciation is expressed to Oscar Annis for making screens for the cellar windows at Robinson House.

Contributors to the Bethel Historical Society in memory of long-time bookkeeper and former trustee E. Louise Lincoln include: Jean Owen, Randall Bennett, Wayne and Geraldine Strout, John and Jeanne Hartranft, Edith Rowe, Dexter and Janet Stowell, Frances McKnight, and Stan Howe. Much appreciation is expressed to all of the above for their generosity. Those wishing to honor Mrs. Lincoln should send all contributions to the society at P.O. Box 12, Bethel, ME 04217.

Among the latest contributors to the society in memory of Rodney K. Howe are Owen and Sue Wight, Geraldine S. Howe, and Stan Howe. There is now enough funding to acquire a second display case in Mr. Howe's memory. The first one arrived this week and is now in use in the Robinson House for the special exhibit on the history of that building, which is open each afternoon, Tuesday through Sunday, 1-4 p.m. Much gratitude is expressed to all those who made the acquisition of the two display cases possible.

The 19th annual Sudbury Canada Days will be held this year on Aug. 13-15. The theme of the children's parade is "Comic Strip Characters." Anyone wishing further information should call the society office at 824-2908 or (800) 824-2910.

From the

Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce

Welcome to our newest member, Wilson's Logging, Stan and Esther Wilson, owners.

A belated, but sincere, thanks to Dick Taylor and Arlan Jodrey for their help with the Powerade Maine State Triathlon Classic. All our volunteers are so incredibly appreciated.

All those who are interested in helping the chamber explore ways to help strengthen Bethel's Main Street are invited to attend the monthly "Brown Bag Lunch Rap Session" on Friday, Aug. 13, from noon to 1 p.m. in Crescent Park School's cafeteria. This topic was one of the identified priorities at last month's luncheon. An RSVP by Thursday, Aug. 12, will be appreciated; call 824-2282; fax 824-7123, or e-mail info@bethel-maine.com.

Economic development was also one of the identified priorities of last month's luncheon. A meeting of the Economic Development subcommittee is scheduled for this Friday, Aug. 6 at 7:45 a.m., at the chamber office. We have invited Bob Thompson, executive director of the Androscoggin Valley Council of Governments to speak to us about how his organization is able to help us. All interested are welcomed to attend.

We are also moving ahead on the Business Visitation Program project, which we hope to get underway officially in September. Any questions on this can be directed to the president, Michele Varuolo; Education Committee chair, Kathi Schandelmeyer; or executive director, Robin Zinchuk.

From the Community Lakes Association

The annual meeting of the Community Lakes Association will be held Aug. 7, from 9 to 11 a.m., at the Maine Conservation School in Bryant Pond. Refreshments will be available at 8:30 a.m.

Topics to be discussed will be placement of "Headway Speed" buoys, Gilbert Dam in Locke Mills, Route 26 spring, results of water testing, etc.

There will be a presentation of "Why we test the ponds" by a guest speaker from the Volunteer Monitoring Program.

From

REACH

The Rape Education and Crisis Hotline (REACH), which provides crisis intervention, support and advocacy for sexual assault and abuse survivors in Oxford County, Harrison and Bridgton, is currently looking for caring people who would like to help address the issue of sexual assault and sexual abuse in our communities. Volunteers are needed to staff their 24-hour hotline (especially daytime shifts).

REACH provides a 10-week training program, free of charge. Classes meet for three hours in the early evening, once a week, beginning in mid-September. Topics include the emotional/physical/sexual reactions to sexual assault and child sexual abuse; family, medical and mental health issues; dealing with law enforcement and legal systems; domestic violence; social attitudes; crisis intervention and listening skills.

Trained volunteer advocates provide supportive counseling, information and referral. They also offer advocacy for victims within the medical and legal systems. These services are available to people of all ages, male and female, at no cost. A pager system is used, allowing volunteers full freedom to have active, constructive days while on call.

Persons successfully completing the training may be eligible to become REACH Crisis Hotline Advocates. Advocates are asked to volunteer four to five 12-hour shifts of on-call time per month, and to attend monthly advocate meetings. From the

West Paris Public Library

Saturday, Aug. 14, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., the Friends of the West Paris Library will hold their annual book and food sale. The event will be held on the lawn at the library, located on Main Street in West Paris. Plan to come out and browse the numerous tables of books and related materials on display for bargain prices.

Area residents have donated many books for this year's affair. Also the library has weeded some of its own materials, particularly for youth, and many of those books will be included in the items for sale.

The food sale, always held in conjunction with the book sale, will feature a variety of baked goods donated by the great cooks of the area.

From the

Friends of the Errol Public Library

The town of Errol is celebrating its 225th anniversary, and the Friends of the Errol Public Library are joining in the celebration by bringing the American Dolls for viewing. During the week of Aug. 16 through Saturday, Aug. 21, the library will be open on a daily basis for anyone to view these beautiful dolls. Come meet Felicity, Josefine, Kirsten, Addy, Samantha and Molly dressed in their outfits. We are offering the Felicity doll as a raffle to help with the Friends fundraising efforts.

On Saturday, Aug. 21, there will be refreshments and door prizes available. Errol also has a full day of events planned as a part of the 225th celebration.

Summer Reading Program

As part of Errol's Summer Reading program, the Friends of the Errol Public Library are pleased to be able to bring to Errol, the Fairytaler. Pauline Faneuf, a professional actress and member of The American Federation of Radio and Television artists, has had a variety of roles from neighborhood lady in the Family Channel's "Big Brother Jake," to mysterious mother, Gertrude Cayce in "Unsolved Mysteries." With a degree in elementary education and speech-theatre, she has written and produced over 20 shows for stage and television. The Fairytaler continues to entertain thousands of children and adults at libraries, festivals, fairs and community centers in 20 states from Texas to Vermont, and she is joining our community in August.

Pauline Faneuf, as the Fairytaler, appears in glittery gowns and jewels and presents a fairytale with active participation from the members of the audience using props and costumes, magical melodies and delightful dances.

Come early to sign up and be in the show. The Town Hall will be open at 1 p.m. for eager participants to come in and sign up.

Refreshments will be available. This is free to the public; donations are welcome.

For more information for either event, please call (603) 482-7720 or (603) 482-3841.

From the

Telstar Alumni Association

Plans are underway for the third annual gathering of all Telstar alumni and faculty. The event will take place on Saturday, July 14, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The annual meeting of the Telstar Alumni Association will begin at 11:30 a.m. in the cafeteria, with the co-president, Christine Greenleaf, presiding. All alumni are encouraged to attend to find out more about what the association does and to participate in election of the Board of Directors for the upcoming year. Copies of the by-laws will be available at this meeting.

Following the meeting, there will be games for the kids, a volleyball challenge all day, scrapbooks and yearbooks for perusal, and folks to talk with from all 30 years of Telstar's history. There will also be hot dogs, chips, and sodas provided by the Alumni Association at no charge to those attending. Alumni T-shirts and other items will be available for sale.

This event has been growing steadily over the past few years, and it is expected to be even bigger this year. All graduates of Telstar Regional High School and past and present members of the faculty are members of the association. The active members of the association encourage all other members to become active by attending monthly meetings, participating in fundraisers, and helping to make the association's presence known to alumni around the country. The association needs more active members to help meet its goals.

The Telstar Alumni Association looks forward to seeing many of its 3,000 plus members on the 14th.

About the Business Person who Doesn't Advertise...

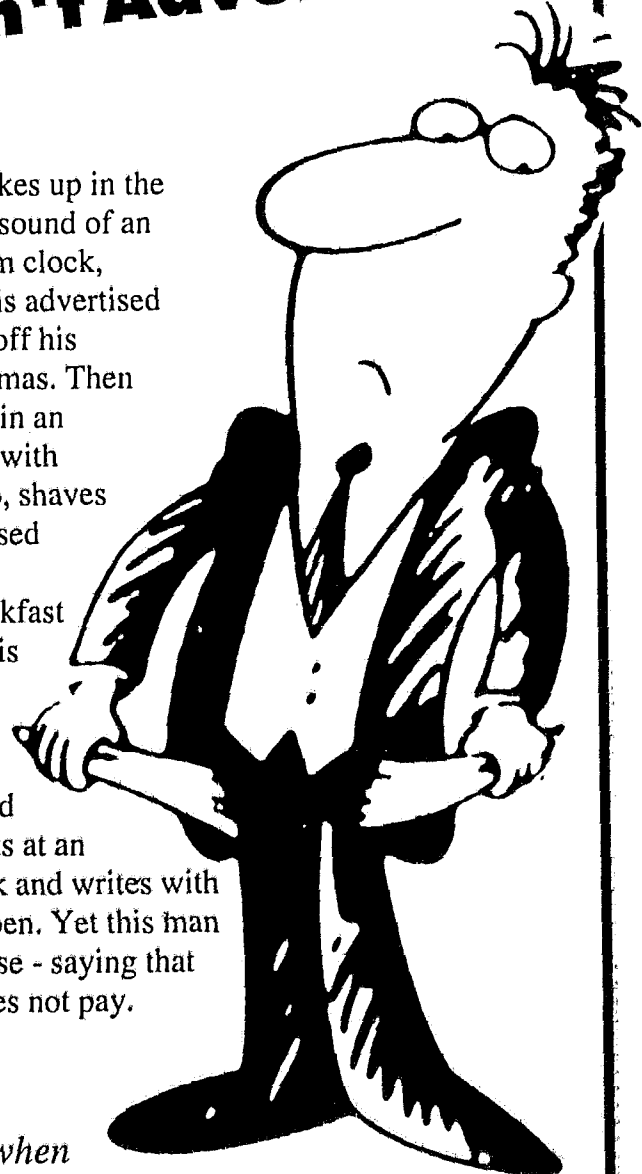

This person wakes up in the morning to the sound of an advertised alarm clock, climbs out of his advertised bed, and takes off his advertised pajamas. Then he takes a bath in an advertised tub, with advertised soap, shaves with an advertised razor, eats an advertised breakfast food, puts on his advertised clothes and drives to work in his advertised car. He then sits at an advertised desk and writes with an advertised pen. Yet this man doesn't advertise - saying that advertising does not pay.

Eventually, when his unadvertised business goes under, he will advertise it for sale!

CORIAN® sends granite back to the Stone Age.

As rocks go, granite is just great. But a rock can't do what CORIAN can.

With CORIAN, satiny, sensuous curves can sweep seamlessly into matching multiple sinks. Inlays can dance across counter tops in intricate patterns. Edge treatments can add dash and dazzle...mixing a touch of metal, wood or ceramic with the easy-to-clean, stain-resistant durability of CORIAN.

Route it. Carve it. Sandblast it. Even thermoform it into curves and waves.

CORIAN doesn't require regular professional maintenance like granite. And with a 10-year warranty from DuPont, you won't ever find yourself between a rock and a hard place.

Call today. We're just a stone's throw away. Let us show you the design freedom CORIAN can give you that granite can't.

DANA C. DOUGLASS, JR.

Dana C. Douglass, Jr., 84, of Bethel, died on July 30, 1999, at his residence, with his family at his side.

Dana was born in Portland on Aug. 21, 1914, the son of Dana and Martha Douglass. He was a graduate of Governor Dummer Academy, South Byfield, Mass., in 1933 and of Dartmouth College, Hanover, N.H., in 1937.

After graduating from college, Dana was employed with an investment trust in Jersey City, N.J., for three years prior to moving to Portland, where he established the Stanley-Dana Corp., a sound equipment company.

In 1939, Dana married Barbara Harte Anderson of Newton Center, Mass. They lived in Portland for the next ten years.

In 1948, Dana reopened both the Bumpus Quarry in Albany and the Newry Mine. The mining operations provided pegmatites, which included the strategic mineral, mica, used for insulation in the planes and ships defending our country. In 1950, he relocated his family, Barbara and his four daughters, to Bethel. With the closing of the mines, Dana became employed at the Earth Station for Satellite Communications in Andover. He later formed his own company, Dana C. Douglass Association, Inc., in land surveying. Dana walked up and over many parcels of land in Bethel and surrounding towns, including the Sunday River Ski Resort area.

Dana would often offer unsubsidized surveying for causes such as churches, cemeteries and schools. He also participated in other town activities, whether it was emceeing for a cause or as president for the PTA and president of the Bethel Area Health Center. One of his most important community supports was frequent donation of blood for the American Red Cross.

Dana, with his wife Barbara, actively participated in the development of Mollycoddet Day events. In 1974, the couple was honored with the Greater Bethel Chamber of Commerce Henry Hastings Award for community service and also life memberships in the Bethel Historical Society and Middle Intervale Meeting House.

Dana and Barbara recently celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary.

Dana's greatest pleasures, other than his family, were gardening and golf. His flowers adorned many events in Bethel. Dana and Barbara also enjoyed many wonderful trips traveling in and out of the United States. Bethel remained his favorite place, and he always referred to it as "Paradise."
